Why not try a more laid-back workout work out experience that is both challenging and will target other areas of your body that aren't normally associated with your typical "cookie-cutter" fitness class experience. Experience a bouquet of cardio from other sources outside of running/sprinting. There are multiple, lightweight tools used to train your muscles (kettlebells, steel clubs, sandbags, hand weights, etc.), but your body also becomes a vital tool as well. Short spin bike segments, an occasional obstacle course and even a boxing glove/mitt workout will help bring you to the always fun and challenging class finisher...the Battle Rope Anchor with a variety of rope lengths and weights to be used in multiple routines. Class concludes with a yoga-style stretch/movement segment. Routines and music change weekly to keep your head in the game! Why not give this "under the radar" workout experience a try? 15-max class size, register early to "lock-in" your spot.
